- Members of a regulatory board must familiarize themselves with the laws, rules, regulations, policies and procedures that govern their service on the board.
- The work of regulatory boards for the licensed professions is public service, not private interest or group advocacy.
- Regardless of whether a member of a regulatory board is a licensee in that same profession or a public member, it is essential for each board member to represent the public; that is, all of the people. Board members do not represent the profession, or any other private group.
- Members of regulatory boards must strive beyond the norm to avoid any actual or perceived conflict of interest that may compromise the integrity of the board.
- Members of regulatory boards must strive beyond the norm to avoid any relationship, activity or position that may influence, directly or indirectly, the performance of his or her official duties as a board member.
